ED. CAPITAL JOURNAL :- I, too an glad that this "intermimable ariff discussion," is to be "relieved w an excursion into the finance mestion." Commending you for your evident liberality and fairness o this, as well as other subjects, I ask space in your valuable columns, to correct a few errors appearing in the letter of D. M. A., in the JOURNAL of May 25th and in your comments thereon. D. M. A. says: "As I un- to- night. derstand it, the greenbackers oppose the use of gold and silver as currency."

Having been intimately connectad with the greenback party ever since its organization in 1876, and having been on its ticket three times anvassing the county, and partly the state in its behalf, I think I can speak advisedly as to its objects, principles, and theory. We did not oppose the use of gold and silver sa currency? We opposed then, as I do now, the proposition that they are, and should be, the only legal tender, lawful, circulating medium. Neither did we seek to make paper money "irredeemable," s you suppose. But we did hold, as I hold now, that redeemability is not an essential quality of paper money issued by the United States; that the essential feature of paper money, as well as gold, silver, copper or nickel is legal tender.

The test is not, is it redeemable? But is it receivable? Not the govcoin; but will it pay debts and

If people in their superstitious homage to gold and silver as "royal money," shall think paper money issued by the general government is not good without a promise of retemption in the precious metals, I have no particular objection. It would be about as essential and add about as much to its value as the, "In God we trust," inscribed on the standard dollar. But the question will arise, why one kind of full, legal tender money, should be redeemable in another kind.

Again, you say the, "$10 or $100 bank bill is not to be held as a promissory note." No, no! There were to be no "bank bills" allowed in circulation, as all banks of issue, state or national were to be abolished. "Carthago delenda est! Bank paper must be suppressed, and the circulating medium must be restored to nation to whom it belongs. (Jefferson.)

possible, and not at all essential. We would be content for the government, by its law (flat) to fix its legal That it could, and is in duty bound to do. As to the recent elaborate plan, which you mention of the govern-ment leaning money to the farmers, ment leaning money to the farmers, and taking mortgages as security, it is not the original nor authoritative, greenback doctrine. Neither do I approve it. This is the awinging of the pendulum to the other side. It will yet sweep the country if proper financial truths are suppressed, and relief not quickly granted. If congress will abolish the national bank system, thus taking from them, and system, thus taking from them, and resuming its constitutional function of issuing and controlling the volume of money, and keep it increasing adequately to the demands of industry, trade and commerce, the producers, whether farmers or aborers will have little cause to complain of low wrives.

After Mr. Swift's speech, the people returned to the grove where the republican nominees addressed them during the rest of the afternoon. The rally was a grand one, and the republiconfident of success.

A Never Failing Subject.

It was intended to begin active work on the new depot building today, but the rain will make work slow for the present. It is understood that the company is contemplating moving the water tank to approval of every person in Salem. E. This was the essential idea of the greenbackers. It is now adopted by the prohibitionists, as an examination of their state and county platforms will show: "That all money, whether gold, silver, or paper, should be issued directly by the government."

We did not, as you suppose, want or expect the government, by its "flat" to "endue" this paper money with "intrinsic value." That is impossible, and not at all essential.
